SUPPLEMENT TO PAPER OF FEBRUARY 26, 2007

Commissioner for Patents
P.O. Box 1450
Alexandria, VA 22313-1450

The paper of February 26, 2007 amends the method claims as follows:

wherein at least some portion of ~~originating, managing, or analyzing~~ [a lease] is performed with assistance of ~~[[on]]~~ a computer.

As noted in the paper of February 26, 2006, this amendment to the method claims is not narrowing. The phrase “some portion of ... [a lease]” (in which “lease” is used as a noun) has the full breadth supported by the specification, including “portions” relating to solicitation, origination, cost comparison, managing, analyzing, servicing, securitization, and retirement, and data warehouse storage of data relating thereto. See, e.g., ¶¶ [0085]-[0122], and claims 126-129. In contrast, the verb “leasing” has the scope of the verb “leasing” understood by those of ordinary skill, as discussed in Mr. Lowenstein’s affidavit.

Respectfully submitted,

Dated: March 15, 2007
